6. Churn Analysis — May 2026

Total churned ARR in May 2026 was $3.0M across 30+ accounts. The largest single churn ($560K) was driven by concerns over the MAU-based consumption model. Competitive displacement by StatSig accounted for $372K. Budget constraints and corporate events (bankruptcy, acquisition) drove further losses.

7. Key Takeaways & Recommended Actions

■ Strong May recovery

RR reached 84.6% — the highest in 6 months and +6.4pp above April. Churn ARR hit its lowest point at $3.0M, down 68% from December's $9.3M peak.

■■ Mid-Market needs attention

The Mid-Market segment ($100k–$250k ARR) underperformed at 78.1%, dragging the global rate. Targeted CSM intervention and commercial review recommended.

■ Commerce Connect Non-Retail at risk

66.6% renewal rate on $1.7M ARR is a persistent concern. A product–market fit review and competitive displacement analysis is advised.

■ Opal still nascent

Attach rate is in the 3–5% range with high monthly volatility. Continued enablement and bundling incentives needed to build a reliable pipeline.

■ EMEA leading, APJ stabilising

EMEA maintained above-average renewal rate (88.5%). APJ improved from its December low (50%) to 78% — continue monitoring closely.

■ MAU pricing model: action required

The single largest May churn ($560K) was explicitly linked to MAU-based overage friction. Commercial team should review pricing guardrails.
